

On this day in 1922, the first Newbery Medal was awarded to Hendrik Willem van Loon. This award is given to authors in recognition of their outstanding contribution to American literature for children. Using resources in your classroom or library, learn more about the books and authors that have received this award. Are any of them one of your favorites?